"William<sup>1</sup> Longley. 1614-1680. Son of John Longley of Firsby, Lincolnshire, Eng. Born about 1614. He married Joanna Goffe. He was one of the grantees of Lynn, where he was admitted a freeman (under name of Langley) March 14, 1639. Bought house and land at Lynn about 1638. He made a letter of attorney Aug. 8, 1639, as 'son and heir of John Longley, late of Firsby in co. of Lincoln, clerk,' to Thomas Meeke of Waynflete St. Mary, gentleman, to sell lands etc. descended to him from his said father. William Longley held various offices at Lynn. He was a selectman, clerk of writs, magistrate, etc. He appears to have been possessed of an excellently-developed bump of combativeness. The annalist of Lynn relates that the Longleys were often at odds with their neighbors on account of land claims. In the court records of March 30, 1641, there is a suit entered: 'The Worshipful Emanuell Downing and Edmund Batter v. William Langley de Lynn.'

"In 1662 William Longley prosecuted the town of Lynn for not laying out to him 40 acres of land, according to the division of 1638, when this grant has been erroneously put down to 'Richard' Longley. This land appears to have been withheld from William Longley during the Cromwellian regime. The court decided, after hearing evidence, that he should have the 40 acres or 40 pounds in money. In 1663 John Hathorne complained to the church at Lynn that Andrew Mansfield and William Longley had given false testimony in the recent land case, for which they were censured. They appealed to the county court, accusing Hathorne of slander, of which he was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of 10 pounds and make a public acknowledgment in the meeting-house at Lynn, or else pay 20 pounds and costs. This direct clash between the powers of Church and State appears to have caused considerable commotion at Lynn.

"In 1663 Thomas Newhall, the first white person born at Lynn, was prosecuted by William Longley for assault and battery committed on the wife of said William Longley while she was assisting in running a land line.

"In 1663 William Longley removed from Lynn to Groton. Under date of June 17, 1663, Thomas Browne of Groton gave deed to 'William Longley of Lin, in the county of Essex, yeoman,' of his house, orchard, lands, etc. in Groton, for 80 pounds, sterling. Under same date William Longley of Lynn and Joanna, his wife, conveyed to Thomas Browne, of 'Grawton,' his house, orchard and lands in Lynn for 125 pounds sterling. Richard Blood, Capt. James Parker and William Longley were the three largest original proprietors of the extensive territory which originally bore the name of Groton. Probably some of William Longley's lands took in a portion of what later formed the town of Shirley, where some of his descendants settled. His large tracts of native forest were eventually divided into farms and occupied by his descendants. His son, John, was also an original proprietor of Groton.

"William Longley first appears upon the records of Groton June 21, 1663, when with Capt. James Parker and others, he voted against the proposal to give Rev. Samuel Willard the use of the house and lands devoted by the town to the purposes of the ministry. There are numerous indications that the first William Longley was not in accord with the attempted ecclesiastical despotism of the day. He was selectman at Groton in 1665, and town clerk in 1666 and '67.

"Groton was destroyed by Indians in the spring of 1676 and its inhabitants dispersed. William Longley and his family went to Charlestown, where they remained for a year or two and where he had a grant of land. Some members of the family were also in Lynn during this period. He returned to Groton with a large proportion of the old inhabitants, and rebuilt his house there. At Groton this dauntless pioneer man died Nov. 29, 1680. His widow, Joanna, married, about 1683, Benjamin Crispe, survived him, and died at Charlestown, probably at the home of one of her children, April 18, 1698, age 79. Her grave-stone is still standing in the old Phipps street burial ground, Charlestown, where the remains of many of her descendants also lie. In her will she remembered her three grandchildren who had been carried captive by Indians in 1694. It contains the following clause:

"Item. I give and bequeath unto my three children yt are in captivity, if they return, Vizdt, three books, one of y<sup>m</sup> a bible, another a sermon book, treating of faith, and the other a psalm book.

"Joanne (Goffe) Longley was a sister of Thomas Goffe, a merchant and ship-owner of London and a member of the company which 'floated' the Pilgrims. He was probably the owner of the 'Mayflower' on her memorable voyage of 1620 as well as on her later voyages to America of 1629 and '30. He was also the first Deputy-Governor of the Massachusetts company. He died when on a voyage to America to look after his commercial interests in New England. He lost heavily by his 'adventures' with the Pilgrims. The government of Massachusetts granted, April 16, 1734, 1000 acres of land to Robert Rand, whose father married a daughter of William and Joanna (Goffe) Longley, on account of the services to the colony of his grand-uncle Thomas Goffe. That Thomas Goffe must have rendered great services to the Plymouth and Massachusetts colonies, in their early days, is evident from this remarkable expression of gratitude, in the shape of a large grant of land, more than a century after the first settlements, to so remote a connection as a grandson of his sister.

"The early emigrations to America, from England, were commercial ventures organized by English merchants. The religious element was made very prominent by some over-zealous Puritans, who attempted to establish, and did establish for a time, an ecclesiastical despotism in New England.

"The village of Firsby is about 4 miles northwest of Wainfleet St. Mary (there is also a Wainfleet All Saints) in Lincolnshire. Not far away is Somersby, where the poet Tennyson was born, and by Firsby runs the little river Steeping—the original of Tennyson's 'Brook.' Upon its grassy banks the first American William Longley, as a lad, doubtless disported himself, nigh three centuries agone."

“William<sup>2</sup> Longley. d. 1694. Son of William<sup>1</sup>. Probably born at Lynn and removed with his father to Groton in 1663. He married (1) at Groton, May 15, 1672, Lydia. He married (2) previous to 1686, Deliverance Crispe, probably the widow of Jonathan Crispe, who died at Groton in 1680. Was a large owner of lands in Groton. He was town clerk of Groton in 1687 and from 1692 until his death, July 27, 1694, when he and his family, with the exception of three of the children, were slain by Indians. On Feb. 20, 1880, a monument at the place in Groton where stood William Longley’s house, and where the first William Longley had also lived, was dedicated.

The Inscription reads:

HERE DWELT
WILLIAM AND DELIVERANCE LONGLEY
WITH THEIR EIGHT CHILDREN.
ON THE 27TH OF JULY, 1694,
THE INDIANS KILLED THE FATHER AND MOTHER
AND FIVE OF THE CHILDREN AND CARRIED INTO CAPTIVITY
THE OTHER THREE

“Of the three children, Betty, Lydia and John, who were taken captive by the Indians, Betty died of starvation and Lydia was sold to the French in Canada. She became a Roman Catholic and a sister of the Congregation de Notre Dame in Montreal. In that institution is preserved the French record of the baptism of Lydia Longley. A copy of it was procured by Dr. Samuel A. Green, a native of Groton and an ex-mayor of Boston, who gives the following translation in his historical sketch of Groton:

'On Tuesday, April 24, 1696, the ceremony of baptism was performed on an English girl, named Lydia Longley, who was born April 14, 1674, at Groton, a few miles from Boston in New England. She was the daughter of William Longley and Deliverance Crisp,* both Protestants. She was captured in the month of July, 1694, by the Abenaqui Indians, and has lived for the past month in the house of the Sisters of the Congregation de Notre Dame. The godfather was M. Jacques Leber, merchant; the godmother was Madame Marie Madeleine Dupont, wife of M. de Maricort, Ecuyer, Captain of a company of Marines; she named this English girl Lydia Madelein.

Signed

'Lydia Madeleine Longley

'Madeleine Dupont

'Leber

'M. Caille, acting curate.'

"Sister Madeleine died at the house of the Sisters of the Congregation de Notre Dame, July 20, 1758, at the age of 84 years. Her remains and those of Sister Marguerite (who was her relative, Sarah Tarbell, of Groton) lie buried in the little cemetery connected with the convent."

"The Indians, having lurked about the premises undiscovered, the day previous to the slaughter, watching a favorable opportunity to effect their purpose, early in the morning of the fatal day turned the cattle out of the barnyard into a cornfield, and lay in ambush. This trick had the desired effect to draw out some of the family, probably Mr. Longley and his sons, unarmed, to drive the cattle from the corn. The Indians then rose upon them, and killed or captured the whole family. It is said, however, that Jemima, a daughter of Mr. Longley, whom they had tomahawked and scalped, was found alive, sitting upon a rock, and that she survived many years, married, and had children.

"A milder fate awaited the third captive, John, who was about twelve years of age when his family was massacred and himself made prisoner by the Indians. It is said that after proceeding some way with his captors from the scene of their devastation, when the company came to a halt, he told them that his father's sheep were shut up in the barn, and would starve unless they would permit him to go back and let them out, and that having done this he would at once return to them. They consented, and he fulfilled his promise. Instead of lamenting his change of condition the lad entered into the pursuits of his new state with a relish, and during the five years of his wild life that followed hoped that he might never be removed from his savage to his former civilized position. Accordingly, when he was ransomed by government, he was so reluctant to leave his new and cherished pursuits, that force had to be added to persuasion to bring the young captive from barbarism to civilization."

Bent Writes—“John remained with the Indians over four years and was known among them as John Augary. He narrowly escaped death from starvation. He took kindly to life among the Indians, notwithstanding hardships, and, had it not been for determined efforts on the part of relatives and the Massachusetts government, he would probably have become an Indian chief. He was ransomed by the government and, with great difficulty, induced to return to civilization. He became, instead of a great Indian Sachem, a respectable deacon of the church and leading citizen of Groton, Mass. Among papers in possession of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, Boston (Knox manuscripts), is a deposition made by John Longley, giving a brief statement concerning his captivity among the Indians.”

"After John<sup>3</sup> Longley had returned to his former home in Groton, and had become somewhat weaned from the romance of his captive state, he entered into the duties of civilization with the same zeal that he had manifested in his savage life. He was twice married (first) to Sarah Prescott of Groton, a daughter of Jonas Prescott, Esq., by whom he had five children,—three sons and two daughters. He married (second) Deborah Houghton, by whom he had seven children. She died Nov. 7, 1763.

"Mr. Longley was the clerk of the town for six years, and had three elections to the office of representative to the general court. He was a deacon of the church twenty-eight years, a good man, and an exemplary Christian. He died May 25, 1750.

"It has been seen that William<sup>1</sup> Longley, the grandfather of John<sup>3</sup> of Indian memory, was one of the original proprietors of Groton, and with two exceptions he was the largest proprietor. It is highly probable that when the territory was divided among the proprietors, according to their number of shares in the stock, a large tract of land lying in what is now the southern part of Shirley was awarded to him, as his children of the third generation became permanent settlers there.

"The three eldest sons of the redeemed captive, John<sup>3</sup>, emigrated to Shirley, in company, in the year 1751. This was thirty years after the settlements had commenced in Shirley, and but two years before the town was incorporated as a district. As, however, the northern and eastern sections of the town,—being nearer the center of Groton, and, of course, nearer the paternal homes of most of the Shirley settlers,—were first inhabited, and as the progress of settlement was slow, but few families were supposed to be living, in 1750, south of what is now known as the "Pound-hill" school-house. Hence the three farms of the Longleys were in a wild state, and covered with a primitive growth of pine, oak and chestnut, the progress of whose huge bodies had never been disturbed except by wind and age.

"The younger of these three brothers had previously lived within the limits of what now constitutes Shirley, as his name appears on the list of the petitioners for a separate town, in 1747; but he had probably returned to his paternal home in Groton, and prepared for a final settlement on his Shirley inheritance, with his older brothers, in 1751.

"More than forty years ago the daughter of Jonas, (the younger brother of the emigrants), then past eighty years of age, related to the compiler of this history, an account of the removal of her father and his brothers from Groton to Shirley, their new home. She said her father liked to often repeat this relation to his family, as the most notable adventure of his life.

"The distance in a direct course could not have exceeded eight miles. But, although rude bridges had been thrown over the intervening streams at certain places, and a highway had been surveyed from Groton to Lancaster, the bridges were too far down the stream to be available, and the highway was so far east as to leave the territory of Shirley untouched. They could travel a short distance on the road leading from Groton Centre to Chelmsford; then they must make a right-angle in their way, and take a southerly direction, and pass over the territory that now forms the town of Ayer, towards the dwelling of the late Abel L. Holden. There the banks of the intervalle were so low that the river could be safely forded, and passing over the farm now owned by Charles Dodge, they would reach the borders of their own estates.

"When the day of their departure arrived they assembled, with their wives and children, their cattle, farming utensils and household gear, taking such a store of provisions as was demanded for present want, and commenced their trying journey, some ten or more miles through the wilderness, to what proved permanent earthly homes of themselves and for some generations of their posterity. They made good progress while they travelled east, but when they turned the angle to the south they found imperfect cart-paths and narrow bridle-ways, with obstructions at every turn; these were succeeded by an untrodden forest in its natal wildness. Huge logs lay across their path, stony pitfalls, concealed by pitiless jungle, were obstacles in their way; so that the spade as well as the axe was required to open a passage for their overburned teams. Almost three entire days were required to complete this undertaking. But, as the father of my informant stated, 'The weather was warm and clear, so that our healths were uninjured, yet we thought it a terrible long v'y'ge!' This narrative of the removal of the Longleys exhibits some of the lighter trials endured by the fathers in the early settlements of the country."

Records show that Mary Prescott was sister of Hon. Benjamin Prescott, who was the father of Col. William Prescott of Bunker Hill memory. Col. William Prescott was the father of Hen. William Prescott who married Catherine Green Hickling, and whose son was William Hickling Prescott, the historian.

“William<sup>4</sup> Longley was a man of enterprise and efficiency, his name appears in no place of public trust or employment; yet, with his countrymen generally, he nourished that inbred spirit of patriotism which secured in his day the independence of the United States, a work that older and abler men had desired to see effected, but who had died without the sight.

“There is, however, one event that must give prominence to the reputation of William<sup>4</sup> Longley as long as the history of Shirley shall exist. In connection with Samuel Hazen he builded the first grist-mill that existed within the town, to which a saw-mill was afterward appended.

“When the tidings of Lexington battle reached the town every man, old enough to bear arms, volunteered his services and marched to Cambridge, but seven! And these—either by age or infirmities or the situation of their families—were prevented from joining the expedition. One of them, William<sup>4</sup> Longley,—already known to the readers of this history as ‘Old Will, the miller,’—though bent down with age, and supporting himself with two staves, wished to join the company; and when reminded of his infirmity, he replied, ‘True, I cannot handle a musket, yet I will fight the red-coats with my two canes;’—at the same time brandishing those formidable weapons as though his words were not to be received as fiction. These movements were unmistakable evidence of the patriotism of the actors, and of the reliableness of their declarations.”

“William<sup>4</sup> Longley saw military service in the French war. He served in Col. Jonathan Bagley’s regiment during the campaign of 1758. Several of his brothers also served in this war. His half brother, Joseph, who was in the same company as William, was mortally wounded at Fort William Henry and died at Greenbush, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1758. Under date of May 9, 1758, William<sup>4</sup> Longley appointed his brother, 'John Longley, of Shirley, gentleman,' his lawful attorney to sell real estate and transact all business for him. Under his power of attorney, Dec. 5, 1763, John Longley, on behalf of his brother, William<sup>4</sup> 'now residing in the Province of Nova Scotia, yeoman,' deeded William's<sup>4</sup> interest in the estate of father's widow, Deborah, to their brother, Zachariah of Groton. William<sup>4</sup> Longley removed to Nova Scotia in 1760 and settled in the Belleisle district, Granville, Annapolis co. He took with him his son, Israel, then about 15 years of age. About the time that Israel became of age he appears to have returned to Shirley, leaving the Nova Scotia property to Israel."

"Israel<sup>5</sup> b. at Groton, Oct. 12, 1745. The following account of Israel<sup>5</sup> Longley is from his grandson, Isaac<sup>7</sup>, who resided in Paradise, Nova Scotia, in 1879: 'In or about the year 1759 or 1760, there came from Shirley, Mass., a man by the name of Longley, bringing with him a son named Israel, who was my grandfather. His father, after stopping one or two seasons, and liking the country, returned home to Shirley, with the intention of removing his family to Nova Scotia, and making that place his permanent home, but he did not live to effect his purpose.'

"He left his son, Israel, behind when he returned to the States, whom he apprenticed to a man by the name of Parker to learn the carpenter's trade. The boy was then sixteen years of age, and he made Nova Scotia the place of his life-residence. He m. Anna Kent, had fourteen children, and d. Sept. 16, 1824.

"There is a well-founded tradition in relation to Mr. Longley, that deserves a place here. Soon after his marriage he decided to make his Shirley kindred a visit, and again look upon the home of his childhood, from which he had been long absent. From his home in Nova Scotia he had some twenty-five miles to travel before he came to water transport. He there cut up a sapling willow for a cane, and traveled to the bay, having crossed which, he landed in Maine and proceeded overland to Shirley. He planted his cane in the ground when he had come to a town, a few rods east of Mr. Davis' saw-mill, in Shirley Village. It took on roots and grew to be a great tree, and is the supposed progenitor of all the trees of its species within the town. At this writing (1879) the trunk of this huge willow lies upon the ground in a state of remarkable preservation, having been felled about twenty years. A few feet from where this gigantic tree grew stands another, a progeny of the original, of large dimensions, at the base of which is a water-spring of excellent quality. I have sometimes thought that the fountain and its tree-guardian should bear the name of the planter of the original willow."

ISAAC<sup>6</sup> LONGLEY. First child of Israel<sup>5</sup> Longley. B., Belleisle district, Granville, Nova Scotia, July 2, 1771. D., at Paradise, N. S. Oct. 12, 1855. Buried Pine Grove Cemetery, Middleton, N. S.

He lived on a farm in Paradise, Nova Scotia on the south side of the Annapolis River, about one-half mile east of Paradise Lane. This may have been the farm granted to his father Israel<sup>5</sup> Longley of Granville, N. S. in 1777. The boundaries of the farm, pastures and woods, ran so many rods along the river at the north, to something like 4½ miles to the south. Its west lines were the Roxbury Road and farm lands belonging to his brother William or his nephew Warren. His land was divided into three farms for his three younger sons, David Bent Longley, John Fletcher Longley and Isaac Longley. The David Bent farm has now passed out of the family name, but the other two farms still have Longley names through purchases by two descendants of his father's brothers.

JOHN FLETCHER<sup>7</sup> LONGLEY of Paradise, N. S. 1815-1907, the only full brother of Isaac<sup>7</sup> Longley was a farmer. He inherited one-third of the original farm, pasture and woodland. The woodland was very well stocked with a handsome stand of old growth soft and hard wood trees, which he enjoyed looking at and had cut conservatively when needed. It was about the last lot of old growth left uncut in the vicinity. Perhaps of equal interest was the growing and fattening of young cattle. He acquired a habit of talking to himself which he did frequently, sometimes so as to be easily heard. A cattle buyer of Bridgetown told that walking behind John going into a pasture to examine some fat oxen, he heard him say, "Will I let him have them? Will I let him have them? Yes, I will, if he will give me my price." Many stories were in circulation about his habit of talking aloud his thoughts, his caustic dislikes, or his thrift, making a pleasing subject of conversation for those who knew him. Reports are, that as a young man he was widely known as a rugged and willing combatant in the matches common in his day. The only picture of him was taken unaware, when he was 90 years of age, while looking at a yoke of oxen, by a grand nephew. At death he left a considerable estate of land and money for a farmer.

He was a regular attendant of the Methodist Church, about five feet; nine inches in height, thick through the chest, inclined to be stout, thin hair, high color with blue eyes. In his nineties, he possessed in good condition all of his teeth, and it is doubtful if he ever needed glasses. Although he had no descendants, a number of the family carry his name.

ISAAC<sup>7</sup> LONGLEY. Youngest son and twelfth child of Isaac<sup>6</sup> Longley. Born., Paradise, N. S. Dec. 16, 1823. D., Paradise, N. S. May 11, 1914. Age 90 years. Buried in Pine Grove Cemetery, Middleton, N. S.

He was a farmer, a speculator in apples for shipment to England and the United States, and a holder of some first grade financial securities. At his death he left all of his living children either a sum of money or some land. He was a Liberal in politics. He attended the Methodist Church in Lawrencetown, and was a very strong believer in a life hereafter. He also believed in moderation in all things, and to leave the table just a little bit hungry. He was about five feet, ten inches tall, slender, with blue eyes and thin hair. Married Dec. 24, 1849 Catherine Beals of Williamston at Annapolis, N. S., eighth child of Arod Beals, who was born in 1780 and died April 21, 1822. Catherine was born in 1821. D., 1872. Her mother Catherine (DeLong) Beals born 1785. M., 1807. D., Dec. 28, 1861.

Abel Beals, the father of Arod Beals, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, in the American Continental Army.

Through information passed down, it is said that Catherine DeLong's father (whose first name may have been Simon) DeLong married ----- Grant at Handley Mountain, N. S. That his mother sent him out of Germany at 14 years of age. That he was an only son whose father was killed while in the service of the Prussian Army. A picture said to have been identified by Alice Bent, an aged woman, whose mother was a Beals, as being that of Catherine DeLong, appears at the right.

Four sons and two daughters were born.

MISS CLARA AUGUSTA LONGLEY, 1857-1938, was about five feet, seven inches tall, inclined to be stout, with dark hair and blue or gray eyes. Was a conservative in thoughts, actions and manners, with a stiff pride in her family. She held her own strong ideas on the importance of social forms, conventions and dress; apt to be dignified and reserved in manner with some persons, but generally congenial and jolly with friends. She had a sharp mind, was an excellent manager, living within her means, and at her death passed on, very nearly intact, the small estate inherited from her father 24 years previously. She has said that most Longleys physically were on the tall side with blue or gray eyes. Herself, her father, her uncle John Fletcher<sup>7</sup> Longley and her brothers came under this description.

Miner Primrose<sup>8</sup> Longley left home at Paradise, N. S. and arrived in Boston, Mass. in 1872. Received his business training at the Comer Commercial College. Held positions in Boston, San Francisco and Lynn before entering business on his own account about 1876, operating a Grocery and Provision business in Lynn for 30 years. Upon changing over from a credit to a cash system Dec. 31, 1890, the earliest, or one of the earliest to do so, he created what was perhaps the largest business of its kind east of Boston. Years later he travelled through the Northwest, with a line of coffee and other products for a wholesale importing house of Seattle, Washington.

He was vigorous in mind and body, of a sanguine temperament, very open handed and generous to his friends, inclined to be quick and violent in temper on occasion, a Protestant in religion. It is doubtful if he had faith in a life hereafter, and generally, but not always, voted as a Republican. He was about five feet, ten inches in height, inclined on the stout side, with dark hair, later white; a full head of hair all his life, most of his teeth until late in life, face round with high color and blue eyes. Three sons and one daughter were born.

since. First in a Family Laundry Business, first of its kind at Winnipeg, which prospered far more than anticipated. Left there for Lynn, Mass. in 1920. Interested in various lines at Lynn, among them a tannery, some of which were conducted

REFLECTION

...the first time I saw the film, I was deeply moved by the way it depicted the life of a woman who had been through so much. I was struck by the way she had managed to hold onto her sense of self and her love for her family despite all the challenges she faced. I also appreciated the way the film highlighted the importance of resilience and the power of hope. I found myself reflecting on my own life and the challenges I have faced, and how I have managed to overcome them. I also thought about the importance of supporting others who are going through difficult times, and the ways in which we can all contribute to creating a more compassionate and understanding world.

As I continued to reflect on the film, I began to see how its themes could apply to many different areas of my life. I realized that the lessons learned from the woman's journey could be applied to my work, my relationships, and even my personal growth. I also began to appreciate the way the film's message of resilience and hope could inspire others to persevere through their own challenges.

In conclusion, I found the film to be a powerful and inspiring reflection on the human spirit. It reminded me of the strength and resilience that we all possess, and the importance of holding onto our dreams and aspirations even in the face of adversity.
